

Trevor Carrasco | Designer

Trevor is a recent graduate of the University of California Berkeley College of Environmental Design's M.Arch program, where he focused his studies on sustainable design, environmentally friendly materials and construction practices such as mass timber, as well as architecture's ability to improve communities and lives. He is currently seeking to become a licensed architect and expand his knowledge of the profession. In his first year at the CED he was awarded the Architecture Department Fellowship award for his academic achievements. As a Colorado Native, Trevor has a great appreciation for the outdoors, the character of the state's beautiful mountain environment drives him to design architecture that is well integrated into its landscape and context. In his free time Trevor enjoys skiing and traveling.
