

Jon Bassett Architect

Since childhood, Jon has had a lifelong passion for Architecture. Since then, his interest in design has taken him all over the globe. While in school, Jon had the opportunity to spend five months studying Architecture and History abroad in Europe. Jon is especially interested in the detail and materiality aspects of design, as well as how architecture can be informed by structure, function, and the vernacular. He enjoys taking a project from the earliest vision to the final constructed building by focusing on how the unique details and surrounding environmental context of each project can come together to inform the overall building design.
